PATRICK DRAGONETTE DEN

"My first thought was 'Billy Haines meets Angelo Donghia,'" says Patrick Dragonette of his immediate vision for the design of the house's den. As a dealer whose inventory always includes standout pieces by Haines, Dragonette turned to a stunning sofa-and-side table unit by the midcentury designer and then covered the sofa with a gold ombre fabric. In short order, he brought in a pair of iconic Haines chairs and upholstered them with a bold red patent leather and a pair of Haines-designed stools, which he placed next to a coffee table of his own creation. "I've had the idea in my mind, and this gave me the chance to explore it," he says of the steel-and-glass piece accented with rock crystal and amethyst. Dragonette wrapped the walls with a deep bronze-colored paper for a cocoon-like effect and chose a metallic wallcovering in a crackled gold hue to lend texture and sheen—and impart a Donghia vibe—to the ceiling. "You need a space to retreat to," says Dragonette. "I wanted the den to envelop you and give you a hug."
